Volvo Rents of Columbus raises money for breast cancer awareness through pink excavator

Larry Kirkpatrick, Frank Zalar, and Doug Beveridge, owners of the BX member firm Volvo Rents of Columbus, a full-service construction equipment rental company, are utilizing an excavator that has been painted pink to raise money for cancer awareness.

Each time the excavator is rented out to customers, 25 percent of the total rental is being donated to the Stefanie Spielman Fund for Breast Cancer Research at the Ohio State University Comprehensive Cancer Center - James to help fund local breast cancer awareness initiatives.

“As a local business, we thought this was a great opportunity for the community to bond together to donate to a cause that will benefit local residents who have been affected by breast cancer. Because our Volvo Rents family has been affected, we understand the emotional pain the patient and their families go through and want to help out in any way we can,” said Beveridge.

For more information about Volvo Rents and renting their pink excavator, contact Doug Beveridge at 614/221-2334.
